THE 128 CAFE

The 128 Cafe is a quirky little neighborhood place with the atmosphere of a reimagined supper club. Knotty pine walls and warm copper accents make it a cozy spot to dine.

Our food is eclectic reflecting the diversity of America—Italian, Korean, Thai, French, Mexican, German and more. We change our menu often in addition to offering specials.

We look forward to seeing you!

ABOUT US

Max is the chef/owner of The 128 Cafe. He started to cook in college at the University of Colorado where he earned a degree in geological sciences. He later moved to New York City and attended the French Culinary Institute and worked with Andrew Carmellini at Cafe Boulud and Matthew Accarino and Rick Moonen at RM Seafood.

Later in Boston, he worked for Chris Douglass at Ashmont Grill and Tavolo and Tony Maws at Craigie on Main. He spent time traveling abroad and was a cooking school instructor in Tuscany before returning to Minneapolis where he was the opening Sous Chef at Butcher & the Boar. He left last spring to become the chef/owner of The 128 Cafe.
